Guide to Graduate Programs in Forensic and Legal Psychology

This is the 4th edition of the guide. It lists current graduate programs in forensic and legal psychology. Programs are listed alphabetically by degree type: doctoral programs (Ph.D. and Psy.D.), joint programs (Ph.D./J.D., Psy.D./J.D., J.D./M.A., Ph.D./M.L.S.), and masters-level programs. Each program is described using the same categories (department information, student applications/admissions, financial information/assistance, research, internship/practica, employment of department graduates, and any other additional information) to help prospective students make informed choices about graduate training and education in psychology and law. All information or lack of information was reported by the school themselves and was not gleaned by the originators of the guide from publically available sources.

The 1st edition of this guide was produced by Dr. Garret Berman and students. The 2nd edition was revised by Dr. Matthew Huss, with assistance from Betsy Aderhold and Jenna Boulas, at Creighton University. The 3rd edition was revised by Dr. Matthew Huss, with assistance from Jared Ruchensky. In addition, the members of the Teaching, Training, and Careers Committee gave valuable feedback on an earlier version of the guide. Teaching, Training, and Careers Committee Members: Nadja Schreiber (Chair), Alana Cook (Past Chair), Jonathan Golding, Jessi Hart, Derek Hess, Melinda Wolbransky, and Apryl Alexander.

Questions or edits regarding the guide itself or any schools that would like to be included in the guide can email Apryl Alexander, Psy.D. at Apryl.Alexander@du.edu.

PH.D. PROGRAMS

Arizona State University

Ph.D. program in Law and Psychology
Arizona State University
Phoenix, AZ 85069

Director of Program: Nick Schweitzer

Email: njs@asu.edu

<http://lawpsych.asu.edu>

Programs & Degrees Offered: Ph.D. Program in Law and Psychology Concurrent enrollment with J.D. possible, but not formalized	APA Accredited: No
Department Information: This program is housed in ASU's New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences – one of four units at ASU that offer psychology programs. Program faculty are a part of ASU's Program on Law and Behavioral Science – a collection of 11 core and 20 affiliate faculty who work at the intersection of law and psychology. Students may choose their mentor from among the core faculty. (We recommend contacting individual faculty members to assess their interest in admitting students.) This PhD program is new for 2018 and is replacing the JD/PhD program that ASU offered for the past 12 years. The program consists of 84 credits (30 research credits and 54 coursework credits) that can be completed in 4-5 years. A thesis, comprehensive exam, and dissertation are required. Students entering with a MA/MS may have the thesis and up to 30 credits waived.	Tuition: Full-time ASU graduate tuition is $11,900 (in state) or $29,875 (out-of-state). Ph.D. students are eligible for tuition remission. Financial Assistance: TA/RA positions are available and include stipend, health insurance, and full tuition remission. While ASU does not guarantee funding for more than one year at a time, this program will not admit a student unless we expect to be able to provide 4-5 years of funding.
Student Applications: This is a new program; application data is not yet available. We anticipate making 2-4 admission offers each year. Admissions Requirements: Applications materials include transcripts, GRE-General scores, three letters of recommendation, a personal statement, and an optional CV/resume. There are no minimum admission criteria and we examine applications holistically. However, based on the competitive nature of the application process, students with GPAs of 3.5+, GRE General (V+Q) scores of 320+, good fit with a faculty mentor, and strong research experience will be at an advantage. Strengths in one area may make up for weaknesses in another. Applicants should address their suitability for doctoral study in their personal statement.	Research: This is a research-oriented program. Students are expected to conduct empirical research at the intersection of law and psychology and then present / publish that research in academic outlets appropriate to the field. Internship/Pratica: No internships are required. Employment of Department Graduates: This is a new program; no graduation data are available. Additional Information: It is possible to concurrently enroll with the JD program at ASU's Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law. Students need to independently apply and be admitted to both programs. Students doing this can double-count 12 credits of elective coursework toward both degrees.

In addition to the forensic research conducted in Dr. Edens' lab, several other faculty have research interests relevant to the legal system, such as interests in personality and externalizing behavior problems, malingering and response distortion, and adult and adolescent substance use. Practicum training at TAMU may involve the opportunity to provide clinical services in local jail and probation settings and (occasionally) juvenile justice settings. Graduate students also conduct mental health evaluations of public safety job applicants (e.g., police, jail staff) through our in-house Psychology Clinic. Elective coursework on forensic psychology is offered at the graduate level and students frequently have the opportunity to teach undergraduate courses on psychology and law. Outside the Psychology Department, numerous other TAMU faculty have interests in a broad range of (non-psychology) forensic topics, including entomology, DNA/genetics, pathobiology, and paleopathology.

Programs & Degrees Offered: Master's in Legal and Forensic Psychology	APA Accredited: N/A
Department Information: This is the inaugural year of the program. Number of full-time faculty: 13. Number of part-time faculty: 0. Number of specialized forensic/psychology and law related classes: 13. Requires 52 credits to graduate. The Master of Legal and Forensic Psychology Program at UC Irvine is a two-year professional degree program. Students are required to complete 52 credits of graduate courses. Preceding the first fall quarter of instruction, students will attend a one-week, in-residence course. During each of the two following academic years, students will complete 6 online courses. Each quarter consists of 2 online courses. In lieu of a thesis, students are required to take a capstone course in the winter quarter of the second year of study. Students will be required to write an independent term paper as the culmination of their coursework in the program. Students will demonstrate how the knowledge and skills learned in this program can be applied to a research project. Students may select a topic of their choice that is relevant to legal and forensic psychology, and write a paper that shows originality and thoroughness in the conception and systematic treatment of the topic. The final paper must be evaluated and approved by a committee of at least two faculty members (one of whom is independent of your advising committee). These two faculty members must have a primary or secondary affiliation with the Department of Psychology and Social Behavioral or Criminology, Law, and Society and one must be a core member of Center for Psychology & Law.	Tuition: Average overall cost/tuition for completion: Projected $13,172 per year (for two years) Financial Assistance: Education can be financed through fellowships or grants, teaching or research assistantships, need-based financial aid, and personal resources.
Student Applications: We are now accepting applications for the inaugural cohort of students, to begin Fall 2016. Admissions Requirements: Scores: GRE is not required. Other criteria: 3.0 minimum GPA in undergraduate coursework. Number of recommendations: 3. Statement of purpose and resume.	Research: As this program will begin in Fall 2016, no students presented research at a national conference last year. Internship/Pratica: N/A Employment of Department Graduates: Graduates from the program will be well-prepared for careers in a range of fields that benefit from an understanding of forensic psychology, including (but not limited to): jury consultants, court liaisons, expert witnesses, victims' advocates, law enforcement advocates, case managers, and program directors. They will be qualified to secure employment in a wide range of settings, including psychiatric facilities, community-based agencies, jury consulting agencies, mental health centers, social services agencies, and law enforcement agencies/correctional institutions. Alumni will be well-suited to advance in a range of related fields such that they ultimately become leaders in fields related to law and psychology

Additional Information:

The program will focus on the intersection of psychology and legal issues, with a greater emphasis on the use of psychological principles, theories, and research to better understand legal processes and systems. One of the strengths of this program is its promotion of interdisciplinary learning. At its core, the forensic and legal studies program will integrate facets of psychology, forensics and the law. Students will be immersed in an interdisciplinary field devoted to advancing scholarship, testing theories, and engaging in public service relevant to individuals' participation and experiences in legal contexts.

This program is only offered online.
